Since the beginning of 1953 an increasing number of permanent WOP (Military Border Guard) posts along the Polish coast have been reported. At the present time along the coast between Gdansk (Danzig) and Hel there are watch towers every 300 to 400 meters, connected with each other by a telephone network. From Rozewie as far as Ustka, 24-hour-watches are set up, at distances from which they must be able to see each other. At what distance watches are set between Ustka and Swinoujscie (Swinemuende) is not known. The least carefully guarded stretch of the coast of Hel is that on the Bay of Puck.
